

Addictions Grand Challenge Policy Seminar Series

Dr. Jevay Grooms, “Substance Use Disorder Treatment in the Context of the U.S. Opioid Epidemic: Comparisons to the Crack Epidemic”

Dr. Jevay Grooms is an Assistant Professor of Economics at the Howard University. Her research focuses broadly on health policies as they relate to underrepresented communities. Her current research studies domestic health policies and interventions geared toward individuals who suffer from substance use disorders and behavioral health conditions as well as Medicaid Expansion. This body of research includes opioid prescribing behavior of physicians, the effectiveness of prescription drug monitoring programs, the effect of a national opioid advisory, and access to treatment facilities for mental and behavioral health.
